Wall of Excellence Gets Two New Inductees

Two new names and photos have been added to the District's Wall of Excellence honoring past or present faculty and staff members who have exhibited unforgettable commitment and service to the children of the Sandy Creek Central School District.

Sandy Creek Team to Compete in the VEX World Robotics Competition For Fourth Straight Year

Hundreds of teams from six continents around the world, 49 states, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico will all converge on Louisville, KY from April 24-27 for the VEX World Robotics Competition, including our own team from Sandy Creek High School. Teams qualified to compete in the world showcase through state and regional competitions in this year's event entitled Turning Point.

The object of this year's competition is to score the most points by stacking colored hubs in building zones, removing hubs from the structure and by parking or hanging on the hanging bar. In the teamwork challenge, two teams work together in an alliance to score points while also working to stop their opponents from scoring.

The Sandy Creek Co.R.E. team earned their place through the Northern New York State Championship competition in early March where they earned the Excellence Award. The Excellence Award is the highest award presented in the VEX Robotics Competition and is presented to a team that exemplifies overall excellence in creating a high quality VEX Robotics program. These winners must have a high-quality design notebook and interview in front of a panel of engineering judges. The NNY competition was the largest VEX Robotics state championship in the United States with over 70 teams competing. In addition to the Excellence Award, the Y-team placed 6th in their division and 17th in robot skills; the E-team placed 10th in their division and 12th in robot skills rankings, and the R-team ranked 2nd in their division and 4th in robot skills and earned the prestigious Excellence Award.

"This team is a strong contender in numerous award categories," said John DeGone, Sandy Creek's Robotics Coach. "They excel in many areas and are a shining example of dedication, devotion, hard work and teamwork."

R-team members include Sadie Lurcock, Margery Yousey and Hailey McNitt.

The program at Sandy Creek is in its fourth year and each year they have been successful in earning a ticket to the World Competition.

Watch for updates on the district facebook page for competition results.

Math and Movement Night A Huge Success

The Sandy Creek Elementary School Math and Movement Family Fun Night was a huge success. The event, which combines math and ELA concepts with bright, colorful activity mats where students incorporate movement with learning, was well attended. Volunteers manned each station and assisted the students and their parents with the activity and helped them record their progress in a Math and Movement activity

Battle of the Books Teams Also Compete Against Teachers

Sandy Creek Battle of the Books participants smile before the district-wide competition.

Sandy Creek Central School District hosts an annual "Students Verses Staff" Battle of the Books competition annually as a fun way to offer more practice to students before they proceed to the county-wide Battle of the Books competition in March. Grades competed at the third and fourth grade level, fifth grade level and sixth through eighth grade level. This year, student groups beat out the staff teams in both the third/fourth grade level (winners Natalie Nemier, Haven Wielt and Adelle Harris) and sixth through eighth grade level (winners Abigail Balcom, Piper Phillips and Sophia Luce). For grade five, the staff team of Mrs. Karin Nemier, Mrs. Buffy Peterson and Mrs. Suzanne Preston proved victorious.

As teams competed, students sat in the audience observing. Younger students in lower grade levels beamed with anticipation of one day getting to participate in the competition when they get older.

The following students were winners of the school's district-wide competition that also occurred recently: third/fourth grade (Zeydan Johnson, Levi McNitt and Nicholas Anderson), fifth grade (Lola Tessier, Maggie Wallace and Alina Khan), sixth through eighth grade (Elizabeth Hobbs, Sophie Harris and Dominic Thurston) and ninth through 12th grade (Ashleigh Rosenbaum, Annie Chen and Elsa Graf). These students represented Sandy Creek at the county competition on March 12.

Battle of the Books is a reading incentive program for students, where teams come together in groups to demonstrate their knowledge of books they have read.

Teams Face Off in Oswego County Mock Trial Competition

In a case involving rent-controlled housing in fictitious Gotham City, teams of students from Central Square, Mexico and Sandy Creek began arguments in the 2019 Oswego County Mock Trial competition held at the Public Safety Center in Oswego. Volunteer judges, Judge Spencer Luddington and Judge Walter Hafner heard the case presented for the first time by the student teams.

Mock Trial is co-sponsored by the New York State Bar Association and provides students with hands-on exposure to criminal and civil law and courtroom practices.

In the 2019 case, Harley Davison claims to have moved in with his/her aunt, Barbra Stone, when she was a resident in a rent-controlled apartment. The aunt was 95 years old and needed care and assistance. Following her death, Davison filed to continue to remain in the apartment at the rent-controlled rate but his/her case was denied. The resulting trial centers around the Department of Housing Preservation and Development's belief that Harley failed to provide documentation to prove his/her residency prior to the aunt's death and therefore is not eligible for succession rights to the apartment.

The teams are provided with evidence and witness statements to work with and build their case for the prosecution or the defense and are prepared to represent either side in the mock trials. The students portray all parties in the case including witnesses and attorneys.

The student attorneys begin with opening statements and proceed through calling witnesses to substantiate their case. They end with closing remarks and summation. Following the completion of the case, the guest judge makes a ruling on the case and that team advances in the competition to face another opponent. For the opening mock trials, a fourth team was unable to attend so the judge decided to make the first competition a learning opportunity for the teams and provided feedback and suggestions on how to proceed when they meet again.

Winning teams will advance through various levels of the competition before moving to a state-wide final in May held in Albany.

The team from Sandy Creek High School, coached by Kari Elderbroom, includes: Kennedy Sullivan, Gavin Babcock, Madison Brown, Sydney Cook, Annie Chen, Deanna Hathway, Ashleigh Rosenbaum, Kendall Darling, Emma Halsey and Dorothy Searles.

Oswego County Coordinator for the Mock Trial is Tina Bennett. The team from Mexico won the county level competition.

Students Celebrate 100th Day of School

Students at Sandy Creek Elementary School marked the 100th day of school in a variety of ways. The kindergarten class above dressed as a 100-year-old person, in another class, students collected 100 items on posters that they displayed in the hallway. Mrs. Halstead's class used 100 Legos to create unique shapes and structures. However they chose to celebrate it, one thing was sure, the students are 100 days smarter!

Students Learn About Science Explorations in Antarctica

A special guest speaker recently visited the Sandy Creek Central School District and shared his personal accounts of working in Antarctica. SMS William Gizara, the 109 Airlift Wing Public Affairs Superintendent visited science classes in the high school and also spoke to all middle school students in the school about his experiences as a photographer working with the team that flies supplies and scientists to Antarctica for scientific study. Sargent Willie, as he likes to be called, shared photos and stories about the conditions and challenges faced by scientists at the southernmost tip of the world. He explained about the importance of the area and the unique idea of studying weather history by examining core samples of ice that have trapped atmospheric conditions within the ice layers. Much like soil core samples, the ice cores give scientists a way to examine many aspects of weather sealed within the ice. Sgt. Willie also shared some interesting facts about the race with Russia to the north pole under the ice and the experience with polar bears as the submarine emerged from the ice. The captain of the submarine asked the naval officers to open the hatch, but they refused to until the captain could look through the periscope to see the group of bears who were investigating the sub from atop the ice.

The Beverly Hillbillies Onstage!

Young People Come Together for Leadership Conference

Over 200 Central New York middle and high school students enjoyed a full day of activities aimed to empower them to be great leaders, at the 19th Annual Student Leadership Conference, sponsored by the Central Square Student Leadership Task Force.

Building on the chilly winter season, the theme of this year's event was "There's S'no'w-body Like Me," and differentiated learning opportunities were woven throughout various guest speakers, ice-breaker activities, collaborative forums and workshop sessions.

Students and staff from 17 different schools spanning the region attended the conference, including various school districts from Oswego County, including the Altmar-Parish-Williamstown, Central Square, Hannibal, Mexico, Oswego, Pulaski and Sandy Creek.

Keynote speaker Kate Garnes also emphasized the theme of the conference, reminding each attendee that, "There is nobody on earth like you. Nobody has your story." Throughout her presentation, she encouraged the growing leaders to "Think It. Speak it. Live it" and urged them to ask themselves every day, "Are you living the legacy you want to be remembered by?"

While workshops included sessions on teamwork, public speaking, group skills, time management, school spirit and the importance of working together, the conference's overall mission was to help participants gain the foundational tools of leadership, and then to encourage each to cultivate these tools in their own communities.

"I Need A Vacation!" Performed by the SC 5th Grade Classes

"I need a vacation!" boomed from the rafters, as our fifth grade chorus performed a delightful rendition of the same-titled musical to a packed gymnasium.

As students imagined different versions of what a dream vacation would be, audience members were transported through a harmonious journey of family road trips, trips to the famous landmarks in the Midwest, fishing at their favorite fishing hole, surfing at the beach, summer camp and winning a baseball game.

The show was directed by Jackie Hobbs, elementary school chorus teacher.

booklet. The concepts provide students with a unique way to learn and studies show that learning accompanied by physical activity increases cognitive learning and memory. For the students participating, it was just lots of fun!

In addition to the activity mats, families were treated to a dinner of pizza to fuel up beforehand.

Students Connect with Author Mikaelson via Distance Learning

English students in Susan Gafner's middle school class at Sandy Creek are reading a book entitled: "Touching Spirit Bear" by Ben Mikaelson. Through the school's distance learning lab, they were able to meet with Mr. Mikaelson and learn about his process in writing, what inspired him to write his books and about the bear, Buffy, that Mikaelson raised from a cub in his home in the state of Washington for 27 years.
